

THE PROJECT

QAVAD is an Erasmus KA2 project that will be developed from September 2019 to August 2022. The objectives of QAVAD are to prevent the isolation of vulnerable people at home and their families, to improve and diversify the training offer for professionals and carers at home, to promote the coordination of services working with older people at home and to support good practice between partners.

The project leader is Etcharry Formation Développement and the partners are Matia, Nazaret, Laguntza Etxerat, the Gaves et Bidouze association, Cefal, the Department of Educational Sciences of the University of Bologna, Solco Civitas, Finnish Institute of Occupational Health.

The Danish partner Randers Social- og Sundhedsskole has given way to a new Finnish partner, Finnish Institute of Occupational Health in February 2021, which will be able to share its knowledge around its project on empathy and new technologies for the quality of life.

TRANSNATIONAL MEETINGS

The third transnational meeting took place online on the 30th, 2nd and 14th of December 2020, and the fourth transnational meeting took place on 23rd and 24th of February and 2nd and 3rd March 2021. With an extended schedule to adapt to the online format, the partners shared the results of the in-depth analysis of training and innovative experiences in the 4 territories (Intellectual output 1) and progressed with the training programme for quality of life at home (Intellectual output 2) and the practical guide for home care (Intellectual output 3)

IN-DEPTH ANALYSIS OF THE SITUATION, ANALYSIS OF TRAINING AND INNOVATIVE EXPERIENCES

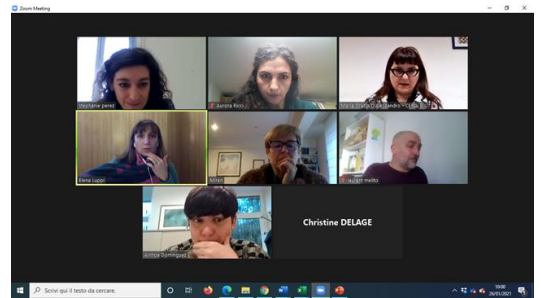

The aim of this intellectual production was to carry out an in-depth analysis of best practices in the field of home care and to better understand the needs expressed by professionals, carers and elderly people in Denmark, France, Italy and Spain.

Each participating country carried out extensive research and best practices and training needs were identified as the basis for the programme and training guide.

QUALITY OF LIFE AT HOME TRAINING PROGRAMME

This Quality of Life at Home training programme aims to finalize a modularized training content for carers involved in homecare. In particular, the Quality of Life at Home training programme aims to design the main QAVAD pedagogical framework and to produce content adapted to the different possible professional situations. In order to reach this goal, the QAVAD team started by analysing the results of the Inventory and Analysis of Innovative Trainings and determined a common theoretical framework among the best practices listed by the partners. Then, the team for the development of the Training Programme moved on to focusing on stakeholders' needs according to the data collection of Intellectual Production 3. During Transnational Meetings, the team worked together to define both the pedagogical framework and the structure of the training. Finally, the group designed the general feature of the modules and the general topics. Dedicated small groups will be in charge of writing each module in detail.

PRACTICAL GUIDE TO HOME CARE

The third component of the QAVAD project, the "Practical Guide to Improving Care for the Elderly at Home", will be aimed at professional caregivers and relatives of elderly people who need support to maintain their autonomy, and therefore their well-being and quality of life. The aim of this guide is to provide guidelines for care based on a PERSONALISED approach, understanding each person as singular and unique.

Initially, the IP3 working group interviewed caregivers and older people in their home countries to learn about the needs of elderly people with regard to care at home. This knowledge was used to define the themes that will be developed in the guide over the coming months.
